Shakespeare in Delaware Park is pleased to announce that this week will be the opening of their second show of the season of free professional outdoor theater. After a successful run of RICHARD III, the ever popular comedy, A MID SUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM hits the stage Thursday July 26th at 7:30pm. Kyle Loconti directs this audience favorite. Appearing in this production will be Morgan Chard, Adriano Gato and Jeff Coyle.

Shakespeare in Delaware Park reaches over 40,000 audience members each season and is proud to be celebrating 37 amazing years of high-quality professional theatre that remains free to the public. A MID SUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM runs July 26th –August 19th. Performances are held every evening (except Mondays) at 7:30 p.m. Shows take place on Shakespeare Hill in Delaware Park, next to Hoyt Lake behind the Rose Garden, off Lincoln Parkway near the Albright-Knox Art Gallery.

Further information may be obtained at www.shakespearein-delawarepark.org or by calling (716) 856-4533. Or like us on facebook at www.facebook.com/shakespearein-delawarepark.

Season Sponsors Provide Generous Support 2012

Season Sponsors include M&T Bank, Erie County, New York State Council on the Arts, WGRZ Channel 2, The Buffalo News, Brodo, CP & I and Wynn Creative. Additional funding comes from members, donors and audience donations.

ECC & County Celebrate Restoration Of Historic City Campus Building

One of ECC's two Ellicott St. Buffalo Heads, mounted on the college's restored exterior.

Representatives of Erie Community College, Erie County, Preservation Buffalo Niagara and area construction firms celebrated the college's $10 million restoration of City Campus's historic 1901 building with a news conference and raising of the final rooftop finial on Wednesday, July 18th near the Ellicott Street campus entrance.

The massive preservation project (which began in the summer of 2011) has included replacement of the one-time Buffalo Post Office building's roof; granite and mortar repair of the building's towering exterior; replacement of the stone walls and cast iron porte cochere at the college's Oak Street loading dock; restoration of fourth floor art glass; (con't on page 5)

Viking Lobster Co. Adds "Flair" To New Outdoor Patio

With all of the conversation about the resurgence of Black Rock along Amherst Street, lost is the fact that The Viking Lobster Co. has lead "the effort."

The Viking Lobster Co., corner of Tonawanda and Austin Streets, has the reputation of "the place to go for fresh North Atlantic seafood," live lobster in particular.

Recently The Viking has refurbished its patio space and now accom-

The Adventures of...
Rocket Man
by Doug Smith

‘Murder in the Bird Bath’

It started with the steak bone in the bird bath.

Okay, it might have been a chop or a rib, but it had been picked cleaner than a joke from a Baptist pastor and now lay submerged in the bird bath which has washed warblers and tickled toddlers at Rocket Man’s pad for 25 years.

Rocket Man radioed News nature columnist Gerry Rising, who suspected raccoons, which are disposed to wash off morsels they extract from garbage cans. He advised being alert to deposits the well-fed scavengers might leave in the yard.

This assumes, incorrectly, that Rocket Man could identify such souvenirs by species. Rocket Man doesn’t know...

Well, anyway, no extraordinary fertilizer materialized. He tossed the bone into the trash.

The next day he and the First Mate looked out to see a black bird, from beak to butt the length of the bath itself, thrashing something in the water intended to cleanse the likes of jays, robins, sparrows, grackles and, on a really good day, a couple of cardinals. We’re not saying it was big, but it had the Complete Works of Edgar Allen Poe (Abridged) tucked beneath its one wing. Rocket Man screamed “Nevermore!” through the kitchen window and off it flew.

“It was carrying something,” First Mate fretted.

Still pj’d (tmi), he went out to investigate. Mindful of the sensitivities of Rocket readers, let us only say that until recently, it had been alive, and that the once crystal waters of the bird bath were gray and fouled with tiny feathers.

Soon he would learn that, just as a group of lions is called a pride and a group of geese a gaggle, a gathering of these mahogany marauders is known as “a murder of crows.” Look it up.

Sadly, he emptied and buffed the bird bath. Within an hour’s sun it was arid. A few sparrows looked in and flew off. He felt terrible. Many years ago our out-of-town grandson was hopelessly homesick until about a dozen little birds, pushing and shoving for bathtub rights, got him laughing so hard that he forgot his misery for the rest of the week. We owe them. Some hot days we restore the water three times. Now it was empty, dry as a sidewalk.

Meantime, naturalist Rising wrote a column about the wisdom of crows. Hoping their intelligence extended to knowing when they weren’t wanted, we refilled the bath.

Wednesday morning, a shadow crossed the sun. The crows were back, two of them. “Nevermore!” again dispersed them (along with two darling daughters who live next door) but once again, the grisly remains of something that had drawn the breath of life within the hour stuck to the rim.

It’s empty again. We grieve for the sparrows, who, friend Rising assures us, benefit greatly from bathing. But Rocket Man will not harbor criminals. Anybody got a clue?

ECC's Restoration Of Historic City Campus Building

and replacement of the entire building's windows and window frames. Installation of the last of four copper rooftop finials—which haven't set atop the building since before 1980—signify the building's approach to completion this fall.

"We're able to say that, of all the great things that happen inside this building at ECC City, we're also proud of its history," said ECC President Jack Quinn. "We're proud to be occupying it with the great things that go on educationally here at ECC and for our students."

Since 1946, Erie Community College has met the needs of a diverse student body while contributing to the economic vitality of Western New York. As a member of the state's SUNY system, the three-campus college provides flexible, affordable and accessible educational programs in an accommodating academic environment. Equipped with the knowledge of these programs, ECC's faculty, staff and students strive to enrich their host communities through skill, service and partnership.

Hertel North Buffalo Business Association Member Spotlight Vanity Salon

Vanity Salon is located at 1413 Hertel Avenue

Making people feel comfortable by educating on styling and make up is what you will find at Vanity Salon, 1413 Hertel Avenue.

Owner Gina Calamita, a National Educator, offers their customers quality haircolor, men and women's cuts, gel nails, pedicures, face waxing, their newly featured eyelash extensions and patented tape hair extensions that all the stars have right now..

Eyelash extensions add length, thickness and fullness to natural eyelashes.

Vanity also offers a line of products that are tested and tried by owner Gina Calamita and her staff before offering them to their clients.

Gina opened at the end of 2005 on the corner of Hertel and North Park in the former Buffalo Antiques.

Gina has done numerous commercials, magazine spreads, photo shoots and fashion shows on both local and national levels, but gained international fame when she was a finalist in the elite In-tercoiffure Mondial competition for hairdressers.

Gina was trained in hair and styling at the famed Goldwell Academy in London. She is very modest about her accomplishments and well-earned accolades.

Vanity has a strong presence on Facebook, where the salon uses it as a public forum to do anything from posting pictures from the latest party the salon hosted or the latest hairstyles and trends, to answering fans questions about hair, makeup and styling. It's a way for Gina and her staff to keep themselves open and available to their clients, including offering quick solutions for problems or questions that arise on any given bad hair day.

Vanity is open Tues and Thurs, 11:00 a.m. - 7:00 p.m., Fri, 11:00 a.m. - 6:00 p.m. and Sat, 9:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m. Call today at 836-4574.

UB Researchers 'Measure The Magic' At Cradle Beach

For Tim Boling, July is an important time of year. For the next five weeks, he will have 800 schoolchildren on his hands, a thought that would cause the average adult to become wide-eyed and hyperventilate into a brown paper bag.

Boling, though, is not anxious; in fact, he is looking forward to it. For these few weeks every summer, he is among the privileged few with the opportunity to witness something remarkable.

Boling is the CEO of Cradle Beach, a nonprofit organization located along the shore of Lake Erie. He orchestrates the summer camp held there, a destination that has welcomed disadvantaged youth and children with special needs from the surrounding area for 125 years.

Here is what makes the camp extraordinary: It's the only camp in the country bringing both groups of children together at the same time. This integration, as many camp graduates would tell you, has changed many lives. An effect Boling believes may be "magical."

"When you bring children together with over 100 counselors who love working with children, a magical life-changing experience takes place," says Boling.

Unique to their program, past campers build strong bonds with those who have special needs and often pursue careers that involve helping others.

The scientific community, however, seldom supports presumptions based on magic. This is where faculty and students in the Department of Counseling School and Educational Psychology (CSEP) in the UB Graduate School of Education enter the picture.

Backed by funding from Cradle Beach and the GSE Dean's Office, UB faculty and students are on a mission to put numbers behind the magic. Over the next few years, these researchers hope to find tangible proof that supports the praises of the program given by former campers, parents and counselors.

"They refer to it as magic in part because they're not sure what it is," says Timothy Janikowski, associate professor and chair of CSEP. "Tim Boling was looking to identify and describe what it is about the Cradle Beach experience that helped many of their campers transform their lives."

In the past year, UB faculty administered surveys to hundreds of children ages 8 to 16, omitting only those with cognitive disabilities. Each survey consisted of simply one question: "A kid should come to Cradle Beach because...?"

The children supplied the faculty with hundreds of responses that were boiled down to 100 unique statements. They later asked the campers to group together these responses and rate them based on importance.

Of all the different statement groups, those relating to social skills and responsibility were the most important. Surprisingly, "fun" was rated the least.

Abiola Dipeolu, a research assistant professor in CSEP who specializes in vocational psychology, believes the children's responses follow their social development.

"When kids with disabilities come into society, they are often sheltered from a lot of us, so we don't know how to act around them," says Dipeolu. "This results in an attitudinal barrier between them and society. By improving the kids' attitude, the camp is removing a huge barrier out of their way, setting them up to succeed later in life."

After all of the data was gathered, UB faculty used concept mapping, software that creates a visual picture of the answers and ranks the frequency of the responses.

The innovative software leads to what Janikowski calls a "merging of language and data."

There is still much to be done. The research will continue for another two to three years. The next phase: collect data from staff and parents.

The workload may seem daunting, but the children drive the faculty to keep going.

"This is not highly funded; we're not going after a lot of grant money to buy out of teaching time or to pay for a far-flung research effort. There's a lot of time and effort picked up by the faculty," says Janikowski. "But we hope results will help other camps and similar kinds of organizations get a better sense of how to make their experiences more meaningful and impactful."

RAVE REVIEWS

"It is in showing where to find out-of-the-way trout streams that makes the map such a treasure to the fisherman."

—Joe Gordon, TRIBUNE-DEMOCRAT, Johnstown, PA

"I have one of the original Higbee's Stream Map of Pennsylvania on my wall behind my desk. It's the best thing available as far as streams are concerned. I use it all the time for reference. I don't know of anything more extensive and it is the most accurate map out there as far as streams are concerned."

—Dave Wolf, PA Fish and Boat Commission

The STREAM & LAKE MAP OF NEW YORK resembles another map—known to Pennsylvania anglers as the "Lost Stream Map."

The "Stream Map of Pennsylvania" was completed in 1965 after a thirty-year effort by Howard Higbee, a former Penn State Professor.

Professor Higbee succeeded in creating a map of the highest detail possible—a map that shows every stream and lake. He painstakingly plotted by hand, the location of 45,000 miles of streams onto a 3 by 5 foot map.

The map sold extremely well—until it was lost several years after it first appeared in print. Incredibly, the printer entrusted with the original drawing and printing plates, declared bankruptcy, then carelessly hauled Higbee's 30 years of work to a landfill.

The few remaining dog-eared copies became a prized fisherman's possession. Professor Higbee was offered $400 for one of his last maps. And state agencies were forced to keep their copies under lock and key.

Experts told Professor Higbee that reprints were impossible, because the maps were printed in non-photographic blue.

Then, in 1991, at the age of 91, Howard Higbee's dream came true. Computers made it possible to reprint the map. Holding an updated map, Howard said, "I never thought I'd live to see this day."

Then, by combining Professor Higbee's knowledge with computer technology—the STREAM & LAKE MAP OF NEW YORK was created.
