

Farmers' Market Opens May 11th

Patrons of the Elmwood-Bidwell Farmers' Market gather to pick up fresh, locally grown and produced food.

Western New York's most popular open-air market, the Elmwood-Bidwell Farmers' Market, will return for the 2013 season on May 11th. The market will be open from 8 am to 1 pm Saturdays, rain or shine, through Dec. 21st.

Visitors to the market will find a few new surprises in 2013, including several new vendors. The vendor list will be posted online at www.elmwoodmarket.org as soon as it is available. Local wineries will also continue to provide tastings on a rotating basis.

Elmwood-Bidwell is a producer-only market, meaning that all vendors grow or produce what they sell — no middlemen and no compromises. Patrons know they are dealing directly with the source, helping to create a diverse and healthy local economy.

The market is turning into a popular entertainment venue as well, with three musical acts booked each Saturday. Local musicians are slated to perform from 8:15 to 9:45 am, 9:45 to 11:15 am and 11:15 am to 12:45 pm, weather permitting. Entertaining the crowds on May 11 will be singer/guitarist Paul Arata, the talented duet of Dan & Leanne, and singer/guitarist Casey Bolles.

Community groups will also be part of the farmers' market landscape once again in 2013, with four to five nonprofits and community minded organizations scheduled to host informational tables each week. Week one (con't on page 5)

The Adventures of...
Rocket Man
 by Doug Smith

'42'

So just how equal were opportunities in Jackie Robinson's America?

Consider this: Three years after he broke baseball's "color barrier," Hollywood made a movie of his life, so far. Not one black actor was considered appropriate for the role. Robinson played himself, and quite well, with Ruby Dee as Rachel. Running little more than an hour (not uncommon for the time), it was well-received and has stood the test of the decades.

Now, two-thirds of a century after announcer Red Barber needed three martinis before he could socialize with a darker-hued fellow citizen, "42" catches up with Jackie Robinson. The lead role is played by an actor who is barely an asteroid in the vast firmament of stars of color. It opened over the weekend to enormous anticipation. In rural Geneseo, more than 100 people joined us – ethnically, they could have been a major-league baseball roster from 1945.

To coin baseball phraseology, "42" plays within itself, charting just two pioneering years. Chadwick Boseman, slightly shy of Robinson's remarkable musculature, brings a riveting blend of dignity and frustration. Harrison Ford invests Branch Rickey, Robinson's singular champion, with a whole Millennium Falconful of piety, practicality and sometimes friendly persuasion. Many took a rain delay to dab at their eyes before filing out.

Director Brian Helgeland actually downplayed the vicious reaction to Robinson. What he and his newlywed Rachel endured went far beyond their ouster from their flight in New Orleans, "to lighten the plane with a storm brewing," while white travelers, evidently with lighter bones, took their seats.

"We're not in Pasadena anymore," Robinson tells Rachel, portrayed with pretty pride by Nicole Beharie.

The film puts up a lot of big innings – Bobby Bragan expressing an epiphany in Rickey's office, Eddie Stanky challenging the Phillies' Neanderthal manager, Rickey persuading mild-mannered Burt Shotton to shun retirement and take over the club after Leo Durocher is suspended for conduct out of uniform.

"You Robinson?" asks Shotton, "42's" Most Valuable Phraser.

Andre Holland plays solidly as the Pittsburgh Courier's Wendell Smith, Robinson's biographer, counselor and chauffeur.

Take it from old Rocket Man, "42" looks terrific – ragdoll gloves, punctuated box scores, shabby stands, the look of Ebbets Field, re-created by computer, he hears. Land o' Goshen, what next?

The movie does not play errorless ball. Nobody said "redneck" then, or "A.S.A.P.," either, and the Dodgers sure never batted in the top of the 11th at home, and Rickey never swore, though he did beat "Judas Priest!" into the ground.

But score a hit to Director Helgeland for scriptural purity, no manufactured crises. When Robinson first scores there's no close play at the plate, and the Dodgers win the pennant by double figures. It's not as mean as it could be but it's never wrong, unlike the fan in Sanford, FL (of all places) telling Robinson "The Brooklyn Dodgers ain't changin' our way of life."

Say what?

My name is Sherlock and I am a beautifully colored young boy that is looking for a forever place to call home. I really like to be around people so spending too much time in the kennel isn't suiting me too well. I have been doing great in the yard with play mates, have been going on walks but would really be happy lounging in a space and place with my family. How can you resist a face like mine? I would be happy to do training work to help me become the best dog that I could be. I would be happy to do a meet and greet with a dog that already lives in your home.
