Funds For Academic Programs at NBCC

New York State Senator Chris Jacobs today announced the North Buffalo Community Center will receive a $50,000 state grant to significantly upgrade their computer center and expand upon their academic enrichment programs. The money was secured by Jacobs through the state budget process, and will be administered through the New York State Education Department.

“Access to technology is such a critical component of our educational process today,” said Jacobs. “The state of the art computer lab and classes enabled by this funding will create a more comprehensive learning environment for children in North Buffalo in need of additional academic assistance.”

Approximately 500 children and young people ranging in age from 3 to 21 years old participate in the educational and afterschool programs at NBCC. The Center’s comprehensive Academic Enrichment Program provides extra help in academics, assists with the completion of school projects, and provides mentoring to each student designed to aid in their long-term personal growth and maturity.

The North Buffalo Community Development Corporation was established in 1976 to develop human service programs that will improve the quality of life for all residents across the North Buffalo community. While the new computer lab will primarily serve school age children at the Center, the expansion will also allow NBCC to provide computer classes and programming for the approximately 700 adults and seniors that participate in programs there.

“On behalf of the North Buffalo Community Development Corporation’s Board of Directors, I would like to thank State Senator Chris Jacobs for his leadership and support of the community center and its programs,” said Board President Ron Deschenes. “Through his many visits and engaging with our staff, he identified an important need and then delivered the funding to address it. We appreciate his continued support of our mission.”

Sabres Early Season Woes

Something was seriously wrong from the season opening faceoff. The puck was deep in the Buffalo zone when a centering pass found a Montreal player completely alone in front of the net for a point blank shot on goalie Robin Lehner. Only 19 seconds had ticked off the clock.

Thus began the season for the Sabres, having the dubious distinction of allowing the most shots against any NHL team last season, an average of 34.5 per game. They could have trademarked the phrase "Hung their goalie out to dry."

They finished Thursday's game losing 3-2 in a shootout with the fans mumbling about how Lehner has never made a shootout save, never mind the fact that their heroes can't score a shootout goal to take some pressure off their goalie. Other than Sam Rhinehart, only the departed Cal O'Reilly scored shootout goals last season. When Lehner talks about overcoming the mental side of his stopping a shootout attempt, he must be thinking of how he needs to make every save because his teammates can't score. For example, Wunderkind Jack Eichel is 1 for 12 in shootout attempts. The Sabres don't even include him in their shooutout lineup. Is it any wonder Lehner has problems with the mental side of shootouts?

There was much praise heaped on the Sabres for their 45 shots against Cary Price, with less notice given to the 40 they surrendered, a full 5.5 shots higher than least seasons leagues worst average. No team is going to be successful in the NHL giving up 40 shots a game.

The next game was a debacle, a 6-3 loss to the Islanders in Brooklyn on Saturday night. The Sabres surrendered two short-handed goals on the same penalty. Buffalo outshot the Islanders 29-27 but Robin Lehner had a poor game surrendering four goals on 16 shots before being pulled for Chad Johnson. Evander Kane continued his strong start with two goals and an assist and somehow finishing at +2 while Sam Rhinehart was a -5.

With a crisis brewing Jack Eichel declared game three as a "Must Win." He had a point, with a four game west coast swing pending starting Thursday October 12th, a season opening three losses could swell to ugly proportions before the team returns home.

This is to be the season that Eichel ascends to the level of his contemporaries Connor McDavid and Austin Matthews as one of the games truly elite players. So it was encouraging to see him assert himself in such a leadership role.

Unfortunately Eichel was largely invisible in the Columbus Day matinee on Monday as the Sabres were embarrassed by a New Jersey team that has abandoned their suffocating defensive game and attacked Buffalo with a bevy of talented young forwards building a remarkably easy 6-1 lead until Evander Kane scored his second of the day with 2:57 left. By then most of the fans were already on their way home after booing the home team loudly and frequently throughout the first two periods.

Chad Johnson gave up six goals on 22 shots before being pulled for Robin Lehner who stopped all nine shots he faced. The Sabres vaunted power play, tops in the league last season, surrendered another pair of shorthanded goals for four on the season. They also surrendered four last season but that was over 82 games.

So the new regime is largely a train wreck on the ice so far. Coach Phil Housley's new attacking style has defensemen making bad decisions and getting caught up ice, the team surrendered seven two on one breaks in the New Jersey game alone. Turnovers come fast and furious especially from newcomer Nathan Bieuleau. It's clear why Montreal was so eager to be rid of him. It's best to get back to playing some sound old fashioned defense until this team can figure out how to win some games. They can't expect Evander Kane to score two goals every game.

viduals, businesses and community groups to support families with critically-ill children by visiting local McDonald's Restaurants in Western New York on October 15th and dropping spare change into a Donation Box. Your spare change – no matter the amount – can help create big change for families and children in your community.

“A simple act of kindness at the front counter is a powerful gift for our guest families,” said Sally Vincent, Executive Director. Ronald McDonald House Charities of WNY, “When families have to travel outside of their local community for specialized medical care for their child, the Ronald McDonald House provides them with a home away from home so they are able to stay close to their child.

A person's spare change can add up to make a big difference for these families. It keeps them close to each other and to the care and resources their child needs.”
