This event has grown to become the second most important fundraiser of the year for the Foundation's local chapter. The money raised is used to fund support groups, educational efforts and therapeutic programming that improve the quality of life for the tens of thousands in our region who are affected by Parkinson's disease. Research shows that the rate of diagnosis with Parkinson's is rising at a stunning rate, creating a growing population in need of these services. "A Night of Hope for Parkinson's" also stands as a celebration for the extensive efforts the chapter puts forth in April, National Parkinson's Awareness Month.

"The generosity of our local community has allowed us to expand our programming into areas, like the Southern Tier, that have been underserved," says Chris Jamele, executive director of the Parkinson's Foundation Western New York. "Our network of support groups has reached eleven locations, and our other programs are expanding as well." Highly popular and successful therapeutic programs, like boxing, dance and yoga, are also fostered by this event.

The importance of the Foundation's work is reflected in the growing popularity of the event. Nearly four hundred people attended last year's wine tasting, raising approximately $40,000. "It is everyone's hope that we can match and even surpass what we achieved last year," said Vicky Glamuzina, chapter president and organizer of the event.

There is a chance for everyone to go home a winner. Attendees can bid on a wide array of incredible silent and gift auction items. The highly anticipated wine pull and a 50/50 raffle will also be a part of the celebration. Donations for the auctions are still being accepted. Donors are asked to call 449-3795 to make arrangements.

Canadian Experience, Eh?

One of the problems of being a mature looking 15 year old is that people tend to think you are more of an adult than you are. There are good and bad things to not looking your age as I found out many years ago. I happened to be a mature looking 15 year old when I was 15.

My day in the summer would start early and continue late into the night. I had full days with much to do on my two month vacation from school. Early morning took me to what was then Front Park (Now LaSalle) to feed grass to the police horses that were housed there. Goes back a long way to when policemen rode horses. Later in the day it was a walk over the Peace Bridge or ride the Ferry boat across the Niagara River to Canada. There was and still is a little beach on the other side that at the time was called the "baby hole". My favorite swimming place and nice place to meet the opposite sex. Which I was interested in doing at 15. Eventually I started dating a 17 year old Canadian girl and was living the life. This is the good thing about looking older.

In the few times I used the Ferry boat, due to economical difficulties in affording the fare, I got to know the crew. To make a long story short, I eventually got a job as a deck-hand on this very Ferry boat. Of course I had to fib a little in order to acquire employment at such a young age. But I did well and made more money than I knew existed. One dollar an hour. That was big money and now I could actually take my Canadian girlfriend on a real date. So we went to Civic Stadium to see Joey Chitwood and his stunts with automobiles. Riding on two side tires was a big deal and swerving to miss a head-on was entertainment back then.

So on the way back from our date, we were waiting at the Ferry dock for the ride across the river to bring Norma home. As we were waiting, a group of about 8 Canadian teenagers appeared and mingled amongst us. Unknown to me at the time, one was my girlfriend's ex-boyfriend, who she had dumped for me. When they became a little rowdy it suddenly came out who he was and why the Yankee this, and Yankee that, rhetoric started. I was in deep trouble. Remember I am 15 and these fellows were over 18 as they came over to drink. Drinking was legal at that age in the US.

So we get onto the Ferry boat and I felt safe as I had the crew as back up. What happens when I get off the boat? I asked the crew to delay letting the passengers off until I escaped from the lower deck and make a run for it. So they did and I almost did. I was embarrassed to act like such a wimp in front of my mature girlfriend. So I stopped and waited for the gang to show up and with my knees shaking they just walked right passed us. Whew! So we continued to walk only to see them again waiting up the hill in our path. Here we go again. Do I run, do I go back to the Ferry boat, or do I confront them?

We slowly walked up the hill to where they were standing. As we proceeded through the middle of the group, her ex made a remark. Not bad but not good. So I put on my tough guy impersonation and said "One at a time or all at once" as I trembled in my shoes. It was a hot night but I was not sweating from the heat. They knew I was from the West Side of Buffalo and many times that alone saved my skin. The answer was that they did not want to fight, her ex just wanted to know if she would go out with him again. She looked at me and asked if it was alright with me. Alright? Alright? Are you kidding me? Did she think that in the middle of 8 adversaries I am going to say no it is not alright? Kiss me good-bye honey as this is too much for me to handle at 15.

She ended up married to this guy and I went on to live to be 16 and eventually meeting my wonderful wife. Also ended up liking Canadians.

Do you have a birthday greeting you would like to see here? Birthdays, anniversaries, interesting pictures, short stories or even a 500 word column of interest to your neighbors. Send them to me and I will see what I can do. Nothing political or controversial. Send to Jbortze@aol.com.

New Medicare Cards To Be Sent

Medicare has long been a lucrative target for fraudsters. In fact, Medicare fraud costs taxpayers tens of billions of dollars each year. The schemes range from fraudulent claims for healthcare reimbursements to fake prescriptions for medications and costly medical devices.

"But identity theft is one of the most prolific and personally dangerous types of fraud for individuals. While bogus claims target the system, ID crimes target you, the individual. When criminals steal your Medicare card numbers, they are also gaining illicit access to your Social Security number. Not only can they then use the information to submit phony healthcare claims, but they can also use it to commit bank and credit card fraud, for example," says Dan Weber, president of the Association of Mature American Citizens.

That's why the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services [CMS] will begin issuing new Medicare cards starting in April. The new cards will use random numbers instead of your Social Security numbers as your identifiers.

"It won't be a foolproof precaution, but it will go a long way toward protecting your identities. It will be up to you to keep your new card safe. The bad guys can still use it to submit fake claims for reimbursement," according to Weber.

Beware new scams, says the Federal Trade Commission, which has offered these guidelines to Medicare cardholders:

Don't pay for your new card. It's yours for free. If anyone calls and says you need to pay for it, that's a scam.

Don't give personal information to get your card. If someone calls claiming to be from Medicare, asking for your Social Security number or bank information, that's a scam. Hang up. Medicare will never ask you to give personal information to get your new number and card.

Guard your card. When you get your new card, safeguard it like you would any other health insurance or credit card. "Medicare recipients will not all receive their new cards at the same time," says Weber. "We will be getting our cards according to a state-by-state schedule that will last from April 2018 to April 2019.
