We Honor Those Who Serve

Supply officers in the Navy ensure sailors have the tools and equipment they need to deter any threat and maintain warfighting readiness and threat deterrence in an era of great power competition.

Ensign Bailey McGowan applied the lessons learned from Buffalo, New York, to help in developing the skills to become a naval supply officer. "Growing up in Buffalo, we're known for harsh weather, so overcoming challenges is something I was able to carry over into the military," said McGowan. Those lessons turned into an opportunity to learn leadership and the most innovative tactics of naval supply in the world at Navy Supply Corps School (NSCS), located in Newport, Rhode Island.

"I have a great interest in supply, which is why I concentrated in related fields for my bachelor's and master's degrees," said McGowan. McGowan is a 2012 University of Buffalo graduate, where she earned her bachelor's degree and a 2014 Canisius College graduate where she earned an MBA.

"Our mantra here at NSCS is 'Ready for Sea,'" said Capt. Nick Rapley, commanding officer, Navy Supply Corps School. "Our graduates leave this institution prepared to support the warfighter on land, at sea, in the air, and in the cyber realm. It is my honor to serve these men and women by providing them with the resources to learn their trade and perform in the fleet. Only a select few will have the privilege of serving as Navy supply corps officers. Logistics support is a critical part of mission success."

There are many sacrifices and goals one must achieve to be selected as a supply officer. McGowan is most proud of graduating from officer candidate school. "Being able to push myself to the limit to learn new things about myself was a great feeling," said McGowan.

The future of naval warfare is rapidly changing, so the course and materials at supply school are constantly evolving to create the most dynamic, lethal, safe and professional warfighting team for the Navy our nation needs.

As McGowan and other officers continue to train, they take pride in what it means to serve their country in the United States Navy.

"I'm very proud to serve my country, and I know that my family is very proud of me," said McGowan.

Hot Line Leads Sabres

Following back to back losses in Las Vegas and San Jose on October 16th and 18th, coach Phil Housley promoted veteran Jason Pominville from the fourth line to first where he would flank Jack Eichel with Jeff Skinner on the port side. At that time Eichel had five points in seven games with only one even strength point (an empty net goal) and his minus 6 ranked 464th out of 470 players. Skinner had one goal with two assists and a plus two rating. Pominville had one goal and no assists.

The move produced immediate results as Skinner fired a hat trick in the next game at Los Angeles with Pominville tripling his offensive output with a goal and two assists along with a plus three and Jack Eichel producing three assists and a plus four. Pominville's veteran presence and well rounded game had a profound impact on his new line mates who have inhabited the lower echelons of the NHL's plus minus ranking in recent seasons but have been on the positive side of that ledger since the three were united on the line.

Jeff Skinner has gone 8-5-13 and plus 7 in the eight games the line has been together. He was tied for the NHL lead in plus minus at +12 before going -2 against the New York Rangers. He is 9-7-16 in 15 games so far. Pominville has gone 7-5-12 in those eight games with a plus 6. He is now 8-6-14 and plus seven for the season. Eichel has a single goal over that stretch of games but tallied 11 assists on his wingers 15 goals for 12 points and a plus five. He is now 4-13-17 with a minus two rating. Among the NHL goal leaders, Skinner ranks 11th and Pominville is 21st. Eichel ranks 88th with his four goals.

Eichel is the play maker on the new line. His 11 assists are the fifth highest total in the league. In spite of possessing an outstanding wrist shot, Eichel has a minuscule 6.8 shooting % on 59 shots. Removing his empty netter from the equation shows him with only three goals for a 5.2 shooting % which is well below his career 9.7%. Now in his fourth season it seems clear that Eichel is not one of the elite goal scorers or "do it all" players like Taylor Hall or Connor McDavid. But with a sniper on each wing his elite play making skills are now in full effect.

Some have called this new unit the NHL's best line but after 8 games together it may be a little too soon for such accolades. While the team has lost four times over that stretch, the "loser points" from a pair of overtime losses gives them 10 points in those eight games. That is a 100 plus pace over 82 games. That sort of continued success would see playoff hockey here in April. Currently the Sabres occupy the wild card spot for the eighth playoff berth in the Eastern Conference.

During this streak the Sabres have feasted on games against the leagues worst teams and face challenges with a stronger schedule ahead. But that is a nice change of pace from last year when the 31st place Sabres were the team the others feasted on.

Pegging For Chestnuts

My eldest daughter, who is a writer, posted a blog on Facebook a couple of weeks ago. It went over well as she reminisced about her days as a young girl, taking her little brothers outside the 174th Armory on Connecticut street to “peg for chestnuts”. If you are over 50 you would remember spending some of our fall days going to wherever a horse chestnut tree could be found to go “pegging”. I was fortunate as a young lad to have one right across the street on Fargo Avenue. When the older Italian owner was not around, we did our pegging. I say that as he yelled at us in Italian. He did not like it as it made a mess in front of his house. Pegging for chestnuts is what we did and consisted of throwing a stick at bunches of chestnuts up in a chestnut tree. If you hit it right, big bunches of chestnuts would fall to the ground. Inside the prickly green cover, you find these beautiful shiny brown horse chestnuts. These are not the ones you roast on an open fire. They are non-edible and of no use except to do fun make up things like necklaces and bracelets. Must not leave out the king chestnuts. Drill a hole in the middle and place at the end of a shoelace and have a war with other chestnut owners. Take turns whacking at your opponents until one breaks. Each battle you win adds to your win count. If you beat one that has ten that adds to your total. A fun game that cost nothing.

In my comment to her blog, as a kid myself and in her case, we did things that cost very little or nothing. Having limited financial status, not poor, both families had eight children, so not wealthy, it was still a fun filled good life. Always playing outside and enjoying our friends and sibling doing things that are spur of the moment and available to everyone. We played kick the can, all you need is an old can, releavio at the pole, all you need is a nearby telephone pole. All some form of tag games. Lots and lots of running. We were all thin as a rail. Most times all you need is other friends to play with. And you played as long as you wanted outside, as long as you were home when the street lights went on.

One of the other things

Vintage 40's roller skates.

we did as kids was make our own home made wood scooters. All you needed was an old metal skate, a board, and a used wooden orange or apple crate, available at your local grocery store. The skate comes apart in the middle and the back gets nailed to the back of the board and the front half to the front of the board. The crate is nailed to the front also, add a couple of sticks as handle bars and you have a cost nothing scooter. We all had them and preceded the more expensive bicycle. Traffic was not what it is now, so we used the streets to scoot around on. Bunches of us traveling all over the West Side on our homemade scooter. Cost almost nothing to make and it was great fun.

Home made wooden scooter 40's-50's.

Every scooter was different. Different crates, different sizes, decorated with many different color paints, whatever was available. Used bottle corks to spell out words, like your name or name of your scooter. You were able to design and use your imagination as this was your own creation.

Sometimes we would have six or seven of us, watch out here come the scooter gang. No garages back then so they had to withstand the weather. Of course, when it snowed, the scooters went into storage. Then we broke out the sleds if you had one. If not, we used old inflated tire tubes. We were always outside and on the move. I think me and my sibling grew up healthy with the outdoors as our world. No TV, no cell phones, no video games. Fresh air and lots of running, jumping, and chasing. Kind of the benefit of being on the poor side. If you were lucky enough to have a dime, you could go to Sweetland's on Grant and Ferry and have a coke. Those were the days my friend, I thought they'd never end, it was fun but I kind of like how it is now. More to do, more to eat, too bad I'm too old to enjoy it fully like I once did. The good old days are now just memories.

National Veterans & Military Families Month

President Donald Trump declared November 2018 the second annual National Veterans and Military Families Month to "salute the brave and dedicated patriots who have worn the uniform of the United States, and... celebrate the extraordinary military families whose selfless service and sacrifice make our military the finest in the world."

Beginning in 2017, President Trump proclaimed November Veterans and Military Families Month, marking the first time America celebrated Veterans and military families for the entire month and not just on Veterans Day, in keeping with the President's strong focus on improving care and benefits to our nation's heroes.

To celebrate Veterans and Military Families Month locally, VA Western New York Healthcare System will hold the following events honoring Veterans and their families throughout the month of November:

Friday, November 9, VA Western New York Healthcare System managers will greet Veterans as they enter the Buffalo sites with small flags. The festivities continue with the traditional Veterans Day ceremony 1 pm at 3495 Bailey Avenue, Freedom Hall, room 301 with keynote speaker, Mike Schraft, Upstate Regional Director NY Helmets to Hardhats, Inc.

Saturday, November 10, VA employees, volunteers, families and Veterans participate in Veterans Day Parade in South Buffalo at 11 am.

Wednesday, November 14, Veteran Homelessness Press Conference – in partnership with Homeless Alliance of WNY at VA Health Care for Homeless Program, 1325 Main Street, Buffalo at 10 am followed by turkey delivery to Veterans.

Sunday, November 18,

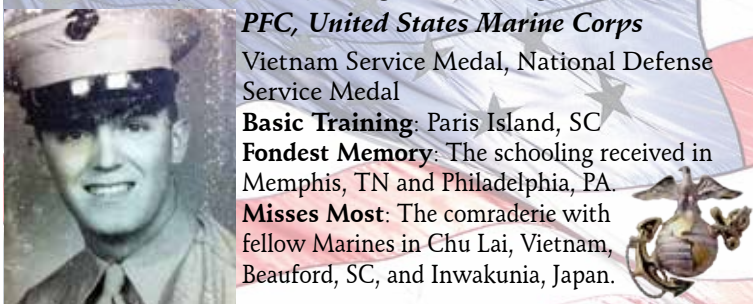

Thanksgiving Dinner for needy Veterans at the Buffalo site, 3495 Bailey Avenue, Veterans Canteen Food Court from 11 am-1 pm.

"At VA, Veterans and their families are at the center of everything we do. Veterans and Military Families Month is an opportunity for us to honor the service of these patriots while educating communities about VA benefits and services and our commitment to customer service improvement," VA Secretary Robert Wilkie said.

"It's our privilege to honor Veterans every day at VA Western New York Healthcare System," said Michael Swartz, Executive Director. "Veterans and Military Families Month is another great opportunity to highlight VA health care and our Western New York partnerships which are an integral part of serving Veterans."

Senior Fitness

Americans are living longer than ever before. The average lifespan in the U.S. has doubled over the past 100 years. In 1918, you were lucky if you made it past 40 years of age. Today we're living into our 80s and the number of people living past 100 is at an all time high.

Fitness expert Jena Walther, Exercise Physiologist at the Scripps Center for Executive Health in La Jolla, CA, says more than half of us who are over 55 don't even meet the minimum recommended guidelines for exercise. They lack confidence, are afraid they'll hurt themselves or are just plain uninterested. And, it gets worse as they get older.

"In addition to making older folks feel better, the advantages of keeping fit include the ability to prevent some of the more serious diseases associated with aging, including Type 2 Diabetes, cardiovascular disease and even Alzheimer's," according to Dan Weber, president of the Association of Mature American Citizens.

Weber encourages seniors to enter into what he calls a "Fitness Protection Program." He says, "As we get older we tend to seek ways to avoid activities that involve exertion. To quote one anonymous wag: the only exercise some people get is jumping to conclusions, running down their friends, side-stepping responsibility, and pushing their luck. We need to overcome inertia and find ways of improving our heart rates and blood sugar levels by developing good exercise habits. Of course, it is important to check with your doctor before beginning any regimen that involves strenuous activities."

AMAC suggests that, ideally, your own Fitness Protection Program will include formal exercise routines – even if it is going for a walk around the block. But being active doesn't have to be limited to your workout times. There are plenty of ways to become more active as you go about your day. For example:

- When you are out and about, always choose stairs over the elevator, park at the far end of the parking lot when arriving at appointments and meetings, walk down every isle of the grocery store while shopping, practice balancing skills while standing in line, do neck rolls while waiting at a stoplight.
- When you are at home, do a set of wall push ups while waiting for water to boil, vigorously vacuum, tend to the garden, sweep the sidewalk, rake leaves, lift weights while watching the news, try toe-raises while talking on the phone, do knee bends after sitting for a long period of time.

Says Weber, "you will feel better if you keep active. Guaranteed!"

Callie started at the shelter shy and nervous but has grown more confident as the volunteers have been working with her. She still can be a little shy at times so she is looking for a human to give her direction and keep building her confidence. She knows how to sit and is very treat motivated which will help build a great trusting relationship. She is picky about her dog friends and that's ok, everyone is allowed to choose who they prefer to hang around with. She has had yard time with other shelter dogs learning how to play so she has made strides. Callie will need another patient dog that won't be too pushy for her and allow her space if needed. Callie is very sweet, on the smaller side, and enjoys the attention she receives from her human pals that spend time with her. We are sure that once Callie gets in a home that makes her feel safe, she will show more of her personality and with the love of her peeps, enjoy a fabulous life of comfort and companionship. Make sure you meet our pretty Callie as she may be the one you have been looking for.....Callie is sponsored by the awesome gals at Buffalo Barkery who have been spending time with her and want her to end up in the best home possible.

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN MARY

Blessed Virgin Mary, Mother of Mercy, by the holy will of your Son, our Lord Jesus Christ, you are our Mother in Heaven. I am comforted in knowing your heart is ever open to those who ask for your help. Your Immaculate Heart is full of tenderness and compassion for sinners like me. I ask that you intercede for me today for ... (mention your prayer intentions)

I trust in your intercession before the throne of God for my needs. Please pray also that if my requests are not in accord with the will of God, that I may be, like you, conformed to His will and not my own. To obtain this precious gift, I honor your loving mercy by praying:

Hail Mary, Full of Grace, The Lord is with thee. Blessed art thou among women, and blessed is the fruit of thy womb, Jesus. Hail Mary, Mother of God, pray for us sinners now, and at the hour of death. Amen.
