Byfuglien Ponders His Future?

The Winnipeg Jets Dustin Byfuglien is reportedly considering retirement and the team has granted him an indefinite leave of absence to ponder his future. This leaves the Jets devoid of right hand shooting defensemen. The timing is poor for Winnipeg who just lost three right handed blueliners; they traded Jacob Trouba who was coming off a 50 point season (8-42) to the New York Rangers. The loss of Trouba left a big hole on the right side of Winnipeg's top defense pair. Trouba was second on the Jets in average time on ice per game (22:53) to Byfuglien. Then the Jets lost two free agents from their blueline; Tyler Myers signed a five year contract with the Vancouver Canucks on July 1, and Ben Chiarot signed a three man. Similar to Byfuglien, Rasmus Ristolani is a large size right handed shooting defender with offensive potential. While he has been a whipping boy in Buffalo, Ristola-

nien would become a better player with the Jets who have been one of the leagues best teams. Curiously Ristolani has not been dressed for either of year contract with the Montreal Canadiens on July 4.

Winnipeg's sudden dearth of right handed defensemen makes the Jets a likely candidate for disgruntled Sabres defense-the Sabres first two pre-season games.

This is typical behavior when a player trade is imminent and the team doesn't want to risk the deal by having the player of interest to get hurt.

The Sabres have reportedly set a high price for Ristolani, seeking a top six forward. If a trade is brewing, the Byfuglien situation may drive up his value and move up that timetable.

The big surprise at training camp has been Tage Thompson. In the offseason he added about 15 pounds of muscle to the core of his 6'4" frame by consuming a 5,000 calorie per day diet under the supervision of a nutritionist and working out strenuously. The result has made him virtually an unmovable object in front of the opponents net in Tuesdays preseason game against the Pittsburgh Penguins at Penn State. Having established position at the net Thompson was able to corral a rebound and score a goal off his positioning. He is an early camp favorite to earn a spot on the fourth line.

New coach Ralph Krueger may have taken a liking to forward C. J. Smith. The 5-foot-10, 184-pound Smith played the past two seasons in Rochester scoring 45 goals and 102 points in 119 games, the most points on the team. Last season he scored 28 goals and 58 points in 62 games. Smith opened last nights game on the top line with Sam Rhinehart and Rasmus Aslundh. There are two roster spots open at forward and this is Smith's opportunity to earn an NHL job.

Meet Doc! This guy is really a hodge podge mix of breeds with a pittie kind of face. He really is quite handsome with the coloring of his coat almost having a reddish copper hue to it. He knows how to sit quite stoic for his treats and is a lover of life and showing you with his smile and exuberance. He does love toys and has been seen happily tossing one around amusing himself. Doc seems to get overlooked and we have learned that he really is a happy dog that would love a home that keeps him active, give him more training and a loving home to settle into. Spending too long of a time at a shelter can often break down a dog, and we don't want that to happen to Doc. Make sure you meet Doc when you make a list of dogs to meet on your trip down to the shelter, we hope you can give him the home he deserves.

Mountain Climbing in Switzerland

Last week I mentioned traveling to Europe. On one of those trips my wife requested that we go to Switzerland and the city of her heritage, Zug. We did that and soon realized you have not seen mountains till you have seen Switzerland. Not only are there cities in the valleys but homes built into the side of these mile high piles of rock. The scenery is breathtaking and something to behold. We took a trip up to one of these mountain homes for a visit. Traveling the road up leaves one with an extra heartbeat. It is one lane to go either up or down. Leaving a slight problem if a car is coming in the other direction. They have dugouts in the mountain for you to pull into and get out of the way. Down in the valley below we could see the town of Zug, in all its glory.

When in Switzerland you do what the Swiss do, climb the mountains. There was a tourist attraction where you climbed to the top of a two-mile-high peak. Not on foot but in a series of transportation methods. Once you have reached the bottom of the mountain you board a bus. Common bus like any other but the trip up the one mile is an adventure. Naturally you cannot go straight up, you must go slowly up the side on winding roads. Just a mile but that was far enough. You leave the bus and board one of those up hill trains on tracks. These follow the slope and go straight up. You sit facing backwards. Like climbing the first hill on a roller coaster but you are looking down instead of up. They have these in Pittsburg. This is the second leg of the climb. The last step is the best, most exciting and scariest.

Once you get off the train you board a cable car. Looks like a small San Francisco trolley car inside. Windows all around, wood interior and lots of bars to hold onto. You get on in at a loading station, like a cave. You are inside the mountain about to embark on to the last step of the climb. Did not expect what was to come next. The cable car starts moving out into the open with a lurch. Once you are out of the cave and into space all you see is down two miles. The cable car sways a bit in the wind, and I can understand the panic bars all over the place. Not that holding any of those makes a difference. Once you are out there it is like flying without a plane. A certain part of your anatomy puckers. After the initial shock it is kind of a pleasant ride. Quiet, once the screaming stops, drifting closer and closer to our destination, the peak.

The top was a typical tourist stop. No fences, if you fall, you fall. Some railing for the more dangerous lookouts. There was a small restaurant and if you were hungry you ate and drank what they had. Bruns wager on a roll with mustard. Take it or starve. Soft drinks and water. The one other thing that was offered was a zip line ride to an adjacent mountain and back. You are strapped on looking down both ways. I got in line to try it but gave in to my wife's pleas to not do it. Did not take much. She panicked when I took the luge ride at Lake Placid. This looked a little more intense. Looking around at the mountains and the valleys from that far up is a once in a lifetime experience.

On the decent, the first stop back is the cable car.

Again, you board on the inside of an enclosed station. And again, you experience the sudden impact of out into space. This time you know what to expect. You would think. Right in the middle between the two mountains, the cable car stops. Here we are two miles up hanging by two cables, swaying in the wind, not moving. Where are the parachutes? If it broke down, how do they rescue us? It paused for about a minute but that seemed like an hour. Turns out it was part of the program. One last look at the beauty of nature from as close to heaven as most of will ever get. Once it began to move again, and we started to breath normal, the rest of the decent was uneventful. How much more can your poor heart take? It was fun and glad we did it. I think some people would rather be in a boat on the warm waters of the Caribbean. With flat islands on good old solid ground. But that could be boring! Did that also.

Swiss cable car.

Ask Rusty - Will My Husband's Income Affect My Benefits?

Dear Rusty: Since it looks like a good option for me to retire at 62 and my husband (who is younger than me) to retire at 67, will the income he makes after I retire affect my benefit amount by way of income taxes if we continue to file jointly? Also, how would receiving an inheritance affect my benefit amount if I file at 62? Signed: Worried Spouse

Dear Worried: Your husband's income won't directly affect your monthly Social Security benefit payments at all, but it may affect the tax liability on your Social Security benefits. Only earnings from you working will affect your monthly Social Security benefits, but whether the benefits you receive become taxable income to the IRS depends upon the level of your "combined income" for your IRS filing status. "Combined income" is your Adjusted Gross Income (AGI) as reported to the IRS, plus any non-taxable interest you may have, plus 50% of your yearly Social Security benefits. This is also known as your "modified adjusted gross income" or "MAGI."

If you file your income taxes as "married - filing jointly," and your combined income for both you and your husband is more than $32,000, then up to 50% of your Social Security benefits will become taxable income.

If your MAGI is over $44,000 then up to 85% of your Social Security benefits will become taxable. What that means in tax dollars depends upon your normal income tax rate as defined by the IRS. For information, the MAGI clip levels are lower when filing as an individual - if filing "single" MAGI over $25,000 means that up to 50% of Social Security benefits are taxable and MAGI over $34,000 means that up to 85% of Social Security benefits are taxable. But the advantages of filing jointly versus filing single usually more than offset the difference (though you may want to consult a tax advisor to confirm that).

As to your last question, an inheritance won't affect your monthly Social Security benefit (only your earnings from working will affect your Social Security benefit), but if that inheritance is taxable by the IRS, then the portion of your Social Security benefits which are taxable could be affected, as described above.

Obituary

Razzolini, Bernice Frances

12/11/1929 - 9/11/2019

RAZZOLINI, Bernice Frances (nee Grandits) Bernice ("BC") was born on Monroe St. in Buffalo, NY on December 11, 1929 to Florian and Agnes (Stoisits) Grandits, immigrants from Austria. The youngest of eight children, she was raised with her siblings Bill, Frank, John, Anna, Agnes, Peter, and Florian on Buffalo's Eastside. She attended St. Anne's parish school when she wasn't skipping to ride the streetcar and see shows. During WWII, the family moved to Shirley Ave. in the University district, and she graduated from Bennett High School. She worked as a foreman at Buffalo Pottery on Seneca St. until she married Raymond ("Ronnie") Razzolini in 1956. The couple was married 56 years and lived in Buffalo, Georgia, San Antonio, and Destin, FL. BC loved poetry, politics, books, paintings, cigars, Guinness, Irish whiskey, gin martinis, music, a good party, her yard in Destin, AJs, the Gulf of Mexico, and the Buffalo Bills. But most of all, she loved her children, Ronald, Debbie, John, Claire and Robert; their spouses, Debbie, Hugh Carlin, Megan, Chet Kozlowski and Patty; her grandchildren, Steve (Lora), Kerry, Alex, Dan, Brendan (Robinson), Andy, Meredith, Maddy (Justin), Ella, Brock, and Sophia; her great-grandchildren, Brady, Tucker and Pia; and all of her "adopted" children, nieces and nephews, and countless friends. A poet, her favorite word was "beloved." She was certainly that. She passed away peacefully at home on September 11, surrounded by loved ones. She will be deeply missed. The family will be present Wednesday and Thursday from 4:30PM to 7:30 PM at the (Delaware Chapel) AMIGONE FUNERAL HOME, INC., 1132 Delaware Avenue (near W. Ferry Street) where prayers will be offered on Friday at 9:15 AM and followed by a Mass of Christian Burial at 10 AM from St. Joseph University Parish. Please share your condolences at www.AMIGONE.com

7th Annual Walk To Beat Parkinson's

"Moving Day is fun, it is great exercise and it's educational," said Chris Jamele. "But mostly, the support of the community enables us to continue to make meaningful improvements in the lives of those with Parkinson's."

More than just a walk, Moving Day Buffalo is a celebration of movement featuring a kids' area, a caregivers' relaxation tent and a special Movement Pavilion with yoga, dance, Tai Chi, Pilates and other activities—all proven to help manage Parkinson's symptoms.

Bob Russell of Youngstown has been battling Parkinson's disease for fifteen years. His wife, Lori, has been by his side every step of the way. The Russell's have been active members of the local Parkinson's community, giving their time and talents to help with support groups and numerous events. They will be participating in this year's walk along with a large team of family and friends. Bob said, "It means the world to see my friends and neighbors coming out to bring attention to the Parkinson's community. Living each day with Parkinson's can be challenging, but better treatments, programs and research make all the difference. This event always gives me hope and reminds me I'm not alone."

Funds raised through Moving Day support the Parkinson's Foundation national mission by: delivering quality care to more than 145,000 people living with Parkinson's; funding cutting-edge research to advance toward a cure; providing free resources and local services for people living with Parkinson's and their families.

To learn more about Moving Day and how you, your family and friends, and/or your company can get involved, please visit www.movingdaybuffalo.org.
