Noreen & Joe are eager to welcome you to their Hertel Avenue Gem.

Korona Jewelry started in 1900 with Joe Korona's grandfather, John Florek. John was a watchmaker, and also sold jewelry. He moved from New Jersey to Buffalo in 1915, and established his business at 360 Amherst St., near Grant Street, in Blackrock. The store remained in that location for 88 years; moving to the present location at 1588 Hertel Ave. (near Parkside) in 2004.

Lighting the Holiday Season Safely and Efficiently

With the holiday season officially upon us, it's important to make time to celebrate with family and friends and holiday lighting is a key part of those festivities. By following a few simple tips customers can benefit from a more environmentally friendly, safe and cost-effective way to light up the holiday season.

One of the best solutions for holiday decorating needs is the use of LED lighting. These energy-efficient miniature or light-emitting diode (LED) lights have definite advantages over traditional lighting because they use 90 percent less energy which results in significant savings. "The cost of LED lights is more than traditional lights, but the benefits truly outweigh that," said Edward White, vice president, Customer and Business Strategy, National Grid. "By using more advanced, energy efficient lighting solutions like LEDs for holiday decorating, customers will start saving on electricity immediately, and also save on future lighting purchases because LED lights are much more durable and last years longer than traditional lights."

Traditional lighting only offers around 1,500 hours of light and can fade or flake over time, but LEDs feature epoxy lenses that make them almost indestructible so they last much longer, providing up to 100,000 hours of light. In addition, LED's are much safer to use because unlike traditional lights that can get hot and pose a fire hazard, LED light bulbs always stay cool.

Additional tips to save energy and stay safe this holiday season:

Limit the time that lights are on. Wait until dark to turn on your holiday lights; then, turn them off before you go to bed. Six hours or less of daily use is a good goal.

Turn off room lights when the tree is lit. The lights on a holiday tree should provide more than enough lighting to navigate around the room.

The Adventures of...

Rocket Man

by Doug Smith

'Season's Greetings'

Rocket Man confesses to watching Bill O'Reilly. He winces a lot, like when Bill said Irving Berlin wrote "Silent Night," and at least once a night the First Mate shouts, "Bill, shut up and let her talk." He doesn't listen to her, either.

But as he wrapped up one night last week, we called "Hey, Bill, we do, we have for 50 years." He had suggested, as an inexpensive Christmas gift (or holiday, if you prefer, which he doesn't), sending a nice personal note to a friend.

We call them Christmas cards. Long may they reign. (Actually, about a half-dozen go to friends of other faiths; for them, we downplay the spirituality, but most respond and nobody ever complains.)

We start no later than Dec. 1; this year, shortly after Thanksgiving, although we didn't actually mail any until Nov. 30. And we're sending fewer and fewer – cross off Brother Augustine, Nevart Apikian (a critic from Syracuse), old classmate Carol Achy. "All the 'A's' are gone," Polly said sadly.

There's usually some family tension. Rocket Man lifts off first, sometimes dashing off one or two between sections of the paper. "Hey, Superman, how many'd you do today?" First Mate asked while fixing breakfast. Soon, though, she's left him in space dust. While they're chiseled alphabetically into a Stone Age journal, we do them randomly, sort of hopscotching through as we think of good times past. This year we started with the Yearke's.

Haste often leads to waste. This year Rocket Man had five cards out before she reminded him of the picture to send, taken in August at his 60th high school reunion. Great. Blow another 45-cent stamp for the sake of narcissism? Rocket Man bit his lip and (don't let this get around) e-mailed the photo with an explanation, sort of a cyber P.S.

Everyone replied, but differently:

Ohio Gal said she'd forgive us this one time but would never, ever, e-mail Christmas cards.

Arizona Gal said she stopped mailing actual cards years ago, so that she could send more. Rocketeers side with our Buckeye Buddy. And don't tell us you're going to skip sending cards and send the money to charity. We'll do our own good works, thank you. Every card has a note, 20 to 50 words (we guess, we don't really count) sharing a memory and something we did during the course of the year that reminded us of the recipient. In fact, Rocket Man's catch-up e-mail after the premature dispatch brought something to our attention:

They were all from different fields and different phases of our lives. They were all strangers to each other, linked only through us.

Have no idea what that means. Keep in touch. e-mail (it's OK, really) pollyndoug@hotmail.com.

by Joe Bortz

"Road Rage"

Read with interest on the internet about an incident of road rage somewhere in one of the New England states. Might have been in Massachusetts, but that is not important. Supposedly a woman cut this fellow off and they exchanged words. Now that is not uncommon and we see it all the time. Difference is, the fellow followed the woman all the way to her home. The next step was not clear, but the women's sons got involved in some way as the road rage driver confronted her at her house.

Somehow it escalated further, and the road rage driver left, but came back with a bunch of friends and proceeded to beat the sons and the woman viciously. Bad enough to need hospital treatment and it did show pictures of the woman after the beating. Now we would ask ourselves, why? They did not know each other from Adam. There was no collision or damage to either vehicle. Yet a simple momentary incident that sparked anger turns into a violent confrontation with possible jail time. The thing is, it is not that uncommon on today's highways.

We have almost all either been a victim of road rage or witnessed some extreme cases. The most common perpetrators of road rage are younger, aggressive drivers. Not only male but more and more noticeable is the fact, that some are females. In today's society, time is of the essence. Time is money, so the quicker you get to where you are going, the better. Or so it seems with some drivers. If it means speeding up on the inside lane to pass a bunch of cars and it becomes necessary to cut someone off, do it. Heaven help the guy at the front of the line who refused to let the person cut him or her off. Road Rage.

Some examples of the road rage I have witnessed almost seem comical. My neighbor had a couple of Ice Cream trucks. That was how he made a living. In fact, once in a while I drove one of them for him to make an extra buck while raising my huge family. I did not dip the ice cream, just drove the truck. He was a Immigrant from Italy and spoke broken English. Hard worker, and one you had to admire as he did build a nice business out of nothing. He had established routes and did his routine everyday in the summer and things went fairly well.

That was until Mr. Softee, another Ice Cream truck, decided to invade his established territory. I do not know what part of Italy my neighbor was from, but that was something you did not do there. In a way I guess he was right, but then again the other fellow had the right to go wherever he chose. Needless to say, it was not necessarily road rage, but it did happen on the road. It started as verbal but it did not take long before it was an amazing fist fight. The reason we witnessed it was that Mr. Softee would park in front of my neighbor's house and play his monotonous tune. It did not take long for my neighbor to pull him out of his truck and they would go at it. Traffic had to stop as the two of them rolled around the middle of the street. I would assume something was said before this incident that triggered it.

This is the best part. After either a draw in the fight or my neighbor not getting the best of it, he proceeded into the house. He came out with a hammer and went after the Mr. Softee fellow with fire in his eyes. Seeing this, Mr. Softee must have turned into Mr. softee and locked himself into his truck. My neighbor proceeded to break all the windows with his hammer. Finally Mr. Softee took off, only to return later to break all the windows in my neighbor's car. I do not know the end result of that melee as scary as it was then, it is comical to recall now.

Another kind of comical incident I remember was on the corner of Colvin and Kenmore. No idea what happened to cause the road rage but this younger fellow got out of his car waving a baseball bat. He proceeded to go after the other driver with this bat and seemed terribly annoyed. This had the appearance of becoming very serious. The other driver was a middle aged fellow with his wife and kids in the car. It was comical as it took two seconds for the older driver to take the bat away from Mr. tough guy and bend him over the hood of the car with his arm behind his back. Within a couple of minutes the police were there. This was in Kenmore so the police were there in a couple of minutes, trust me.

Now that I am getting older, I kind of back down from incidents of road rage. Not that aggressive drivers do not annoy me, just that I am more forgiving. I am content to just mutter a few choice names and hope that there is a cop hiding somewhere ahead. Depending on how serious the offense I may even think nastier things. But it stays in my head and does not affect my driving skills.

popular line of jewelry, called Designs by Noreen, featuring pearls of all shapes and sizes, mixed with gemstones and beads.

Korona Jewelry specializes in service! They are committed to taking care of their customers in any way they can. They carry a large selection of finished jewelry, in gold and silver ready to be wrapped up (no charge) for gift giving.

Korona Jewelry carries jewelry from three award winning, internationally known designers in silver. Kelim has organic and free-form designs in a signature matt finish that has been very popular this season; Frederic Duclos designs feature more sparkle, and some unusual materials, like lava and iron pyrite. Keith Jack is a Scottish designer making jewelry with a Celtic theme.

Right now there is a lot of focus on the holiday season; but Korona Jewelry would like everyone to know that they take great pride in the quality of their jewelry and service all year long. And they also will change your watch battery, fix grandma's rosary, and give the children a lollipop (with parental permission!). They have become the neighborhood jewelry store for the North Buffalo area, and they really love that sense of community!

Korona Jewelry is located at 1588 Hertel Ave. near the corner of Parkside (right next to the M&T bank). Hours are Tues. thru Fri. 11am to 6 pm, Sat. 11 am to 4 pm. Phone: 834-4755.

Lighting the Holiday Season Safely and Efficiently

Make sure your lights have a safety listing from a nationally recognized testing laboratory, such as the Underwriters Laboratories (UL). A safety approval seal means the lights have been tested and are safe to use.

Use lights only as intended. Always unplug your lights before going to bed or leaving home. While reading labels, be sure to buy the right set for indoor use, outdoor use, or both.

Before decorating, check all light sets for frayed wires, damaged sockets, or cracked insulation. If any defects are found, replace the entire set. All outdoor cords, plugs and sockets must be weatherproof.

Keep electrical connections off the ground, and make sure wiring is kept clear of drainpipes and railings to prevent any risk of shock. It's also a good idea to use a ground fault circuit interrupter on each circuit. If current leaks through frayed or damaged wires, the interrupter will shut off the lights.

Don't overload electrical circuits. Circuits in older homes carry a maximum of 1800 watts each while many newer homes can handle 2400 watts.

Two HEAP Assistance Sessions Scheduled

count bank statements, proof of other resources (stocks, bonds, CDs, IRAs, 401k, etc.). If applicant is missing information, mail-in of the information needed to fulfill application requirements is permitted.

People are encouraged to call the HEAP Hotline at 858-7644 or visit <http://www2.erie.gov/socialservices/> for program information and advice.
