The Adventures of...

Rocket Man

by Doug Smith

The Truth About Van

One of Van Miller's boyhood inspirations was a fantasmagorical sports-caster named Bill Stern, who never let the truth get in the way of a good yarn. He made a fortune telling "the rest of the story."

Since Saturday afternoon, the media, both social and traditional, has extolled Van's virtues. Rocket Man worked alongside him for a decade and remembers it differently. Here, in memory of Stern and Van, is the "rest of the story."

HIS OWN TEAM ROOTED AGAINST HIM - When Miller took the air for the 6 or 11 o'clock news at Ch. 4, almost every colleague hoped for a production error - wrong tape, dead air, blank screen, whatever.

They did that for a lot of folks, rooting for the Gods of Technology to take their toll on the egotistically untalented, of which there was a surplus.

But with Van it was different. They just wanted to marvel as he worked his way out of it. Wrong tape come up? "Seneca Bridge!" Van would exclaim, one of his signature faux-fanities.

Screen go black? "Well, they were playing at night, and the lights hadn't taken hold." Color balance fail? "Some of you with cheaper sets may have thought you saw that in green." Van respected his audience, never tried to deny what they were seeing. Adversity was Van's best friend.

HE GOOFED OFF - He was Vanishing Van after a 6:30 sign-off, re-appearing about quarter to 11, to do a sportscast at 11:20 that looked as if he'd rehearsed it all night. A new young snotnose, with no sense of heritage, would loudly complain that he wished he could "get away with the !@#$ Miller pulls."

Actually, Van would drive to Dunkirk - an hour away, even in good weather - to keep company with his ailing mother, and return with the rebukes of a classical out-of-sorts octogenarian ringing in his ears. He maintained this dedicated vigil to her dying day.

HE WAS CHEAP - Actually, there was a bit of truth to this allegation, which Van would enhance by swiping all the peanuts on an in-coming flight or shaking down the movie critic for extra passes. Few knew that there were dozens, perhaps hundreds, of down-and-outers whom Van had slipped Dead Presidents in time of strife. "Don't you ever tell anybody," he told Rocket Man. Can't hurt now.

HE LIED HIS AGE - Although Van boasted "my Social Security number is 4," he kept his actual age secret, so it jolted him to learn that Rocket Man, his contemporary from Chautauqua County, wore his like a badge (at this writing, 80 years, 25 days). "Don't tell people you knew me," he would admonish. They worked it out: Rocket Man would tell folks how "I covered Van in high school," not mentioning that he was 13 at the time and Van was a senior. Van took that one to his final rest, too.

HE WAS A BAD JUDGE OF CHARACTER - Rocket Man was virtually anonymous when he came to Ch. 4. In his restaurant reviews, the Courier-Express drew a bag over his head. Nevertheless, Van greeted him like royalty and actually conveyed a fair familiarity with his work. He flirted shamelessly with Mrs. Paths, whom he called "Pollywollydoodle." She fell for his lost-earring gag every time and probably for him, too.

When Ch. 4 gave Rocket Man the heave-ho, Van wrote this on his get-out-of-town card: "You will always be my friend."

If only it could have been longer.

Joe Bellanti's Diamonds

"We're here at Shoshone Park trying to get you caught up on all the baseball and softball games being played on a Just Perfect July day. Let's take you right to these team dugouts for their press conferences with the media."

Six divisions are heavily involved in their playoffs and are playing for a championship this 2015 season. How these teams finished in the regular season means nothing now because there's a chance for an upset on any given day.

No team has been eliminated yet at this writing but in all honesty, no one wants to go home. Except of course, if it means scoring a run. All this taking place while the Hertel North Park League does another masterful job of hosting their 17th Annual Wild Cat Invitational Tournament this past weekend for 21 teams of girls, ages 10, 12 and 14.

To say that diamonds are a girl's best friend is indeed an understatement because we're not talking jewels here. We mean the diamonds of Shoshone Park and teams from Cambria, Cheektowaga, Clarence, Eden, Evans and Elma/Marilla and Wales were just a few of the many ladies to participate.

Hertel North Park won two of the four tournaments in the 12 and under division coached by Christopher Flynn and Scott Gallivan. In a Silver division, North Buffalo broke open a tied at 7 going into the last inning, scoring five runs to defeat Elma Marilla Wales. The team was led by Georgi Gal-livan and Ellie Robertson but several others came up with key hits including Tori Fuzak, Anna Gardner, Beth Seali, Alicia Draeger, Kristen Beard, Emma Higgins, Gabby McDuffie, Ella Mazza and Alyssa Kilonsky.

Later Sunday, another 12 and under North Buffalo team defeated Clarence in the Gold Division.

The real winner on the day however was the Lupus Foundation of Western New York, where proceeds from the registration went to this needy charity. Joe Bellanti, the Tournament coordinator and longtime Ponytail softball Commissioner of North Buffalo works tirelessly to make sure this event is successful. And except for some rain Sunday morning, no one left Shoshone Park with a sad face under bright sunny skies.

In Divisional play, Rookie Pony Little Devils upset the Rebels and the Angels defeated the Shamrocks in round one of the playoffs. That set up a meeting Monday night between the two winners. Both the Rebels and the Shamrocks still have a chance to continue their season, but they must battle it out win again. If a team loses twice in a row, they must go to the real home.

In Minor Pony, the Blue Jays and Giants await the winners between four teams. The Yankees, Orioles, Athletics and Reds are presently in the first round of their games and whoever wins these two games, must face the Jays and Giants.

In Rookie Boys, the Yankees defeated the A's, 6-4.

the Orioles defeated the Indians, 10-6. The Rays defeated the Red Sox, 7-3 and the Blue Jays beat the Royals. All four winners moved on to the next round of the playoffs. The remaining four need to bounce back with a victory to stay alive.

In Second Minor, The Padres defeated the Marlins, 10-5 and go on to face the Pirates. The Brewers defeated the Braves this past Monday so both teams will face each other as you read this.

In Major Boys, last weeks column made mention of the four light towers that are around two of the Park's eight diamonds. It is a beautiful sight to the eyes of families on hand to watch a son or daughter play a six or seven inning game under the lights after 8 pm. In a game last Wednesday, the Cardinals' Dontae Chimera had the winning hit in the bottom of the sixth to lead the redbirds to a come from behind victory over the Dodgers, 6-5. These are the magical moments in a 12 year old boy that can stay with them for the rest of their life, regardless of how this season ends.

It's Hertel North Park. It's North Buffalo and home plate is just as good to come home to as well.

Richmond-Summer Senior Center corner of Richmond Avenue and Summer Street, Buffalo Seminary School 205 Bidwell Parkway near Soldiers Circle and Chapin Parkway and Evergreen Health Services (formerly AIDS Community Services) 206 South Elmwood Avenue, corner of Chippewa Street.

Then next weekend, the Black Rock & Riverside Tour of Gardens Committee is proud to announce their eleventh annual Tour of Gardens for the Northwest Buffalo neighborhoods.

The free, self-guided event will take place on Saturday, August 1st from 10 am to 4 pm, rain or shine and will feature more than 50 beautiful gardens that demonstrate the best of neighborhood pride.

This year the annual Starry Night Garden Tour will take place on Saturday, August 1st from 8 pm to 10 pm and feature 21 gardens illuminated at night.

Programs, posters, tee shirts, caps and visors will be available during the day hours of the event at two local headquarters. The Black Rock Tour of Gardens headquarters is Buffalo Religious Arts Center, 157 East St.

win cash prizes and show off their gallery worthy artwork.

A children's storybook is illustrated along the sidewalk and once completed gets narrated to the surrounding children. Live music, dancers, face painters, balloon hats and street performers entertain festivalgoers throughout the day. Food trucks, food vendors and merchants also offer plenty of other delights to fill the senses. World-renowned 3-D chalk artist, Michael Macaulay, will be joining us for a 4th year and continues to amaze visitors with his realistic artwork.

In an effort to give back each year, ChalkFest Buffalo! chooses a local organization geared toward children and proceeds from all vendor fees and t-shirt sales are donated to that group. This year's beneficiary is Explore & More Children's Museum, which provides an environment for creative play and learning through hands-on exhibits, activities and programs that spark creativity, curiosity and imagination in children.
