The Only Player to Have the Stanley Cup Taken Away

The players on the Stanley Cup champion team each get an unofficial day with the Cup. This tradition started in 1995 with the New Jersey Devils. The Cup is always accompanied by at least one representative from the Hockey Hall of Fame, caretakers of the trophy. The Hall allocates 100 days in the off season to bring the Cup to the players wherever they may be. In those 25 years, only one player has ever had the Cup taken away from him. That player is former Buffalo Sabre Dominik Hasek

The Detroit Red Wings won the Stanley Cup in 2002 with Hasek in goal. Walt Neubrand and Mike Bolt from the Hall of Fame brought the trophy to Hasek's home in the Czech Republic where a day long party was planned. At one point He noticed an easel set up in the backyard. On the Easel was a list of odds. Neubrand assumed these were the odds of the Red

Domink Hasek with the Stanley Cup in 2002

Wings winning the Stanley Cup final. But Detroit player Jiri Fischer told him that these were the odds that Hasek would throw the trophy into the swimming pool.

Neubrand warned Hasek not to do it. Nonetheless at 2 PM Hasek tossed the Cup over am iron fence and it landed with a loud splash in the water. He told Hasek to get the Cup out of the water and Hasek replied, "Come and get it." Hasek standing in the water held the Cup up at pool side and when Bolt took hold of it Hasek pulled the Cup and Bolt into the water.

Bolt emerged from the pool soaking wet and dripping water but he had the Cup. At this point Neubrand declared that's it, we are taking the Cup back. There was a gathering planned for the town square that evening with 10,000 people expecting to see the Stanley Cup. Neubrand and Bolt took the Cup away and had no intention to bring it back. But Fischer convinced them that they should not disappoint those 10,000 people. And that there would be no further incidents. The So HOF representatives agreed and the Cup made it's public appearance at the square with no further problems. And Domink Hasek remains the only player to have the Stanley Cup taken away from him in the twoand one half decades of this tradition.

The ORV program starts in the New England States and gradually progresses southward to Alabama. When poor operating conditions (e.g., rain, ground fog) prevent flights because ground visibility is obscured, the ORV schedule will be delayed accordingly.

"This bait program is part of a national strategy to eliminate rabies and we are glad to support it here in Western New York," said Erie County Commissioner of Health Dr. Gale Burstein. "Raccoons, foxes and skunks consume this vaccine through bait and it can prevent them from developing this fatal disease and from transmitting it to other wild animals and to pets."

"Our normal schedule of free rabies vaccination clinics has been disrupted this year," said Senior Public Health Sanitarian Peter Tripi. "While we work to get more clinics scheduled, this is a good reminder to make sure your dogs, cats and ferrets stay on schedule with their rabies vaccination."

"August is also the time of year when we tend to receive the most reports about bat encounters, due to weather and the bat lifecycle," continued Tripi. "Bats are always presumed to be rabid, so if you find one in your home, trap it or contain it, and call our

ed. If you must move bait, wear gloves or use a plastic bag or paper towel to pick it up. Place any damaged baits in the trash; throw intact baits into a wooded area or other raccoon/wild-life habitat.

Residents should Wash Hands Immediately if they come into direct contact with the vaccine or bait, then call the New York State Department of Health Rabies Information Line at 1-888-574-6656.

Additional recommendations include:

- Supervise children's outdoor activities during bait distribution and for one week afterward.
- Confine dogs and cats indoors and observe leash laws during the bait distribution interval and for one week afterward.
- This will increase the probability of raccoon vaccination and decrease the chance of pets finding the baits.
- Baits and vaccines are not harmful to domestic animals. However, an animal may vomit if it consumes several baits.
- Residents should not risk being bitten while trying to remove bait from your pet's mouth.

department for advice. We may arrange for it to be tested for rabies in order to keep you, your family and your pets safe."

Do NOT disturb baits. Most baits are eaten within four days; almost all baits will be gone within a week. If baits are not found and eaten, they will harmlessly dissolve and exposed vaccine will become inactivat-

Ask Rusty - About the Virtues of Claiming Benefits Early

Dear Rusty: It seems like we are always encouraged to wait until our full retirement age or age 70 to claim our Social Security. For me, benefits at age 62 were a good jump start to my retirement. How about listing the many benefits to early (age 62) retirement? And at what age does it become a liability, if ever? Signed: Happily Retired at age 78

Dear Happily Retired: You're correct that most financial advisors and Social Security Advisors, including me, frequently encourage people to delay claiming Social Security until at least their full retirement age (FRA). And that's because far too many claim their benefits as soon as they are available at age 62 "because it's there," without evaluating whether that's a smart move for them personally. There are many reasons why it's best to wait, but there are also some very good reasons for claiming benefits at age 62. Let's explore those.

Claiming at age 62 is exactly the right move if you are in poor health and don't expect to live a long life. Benefits taken age 62 are 25% less for those with a full retirement age (FRA) of 66, and 30% less if your FRA is 67. But those reductions become insignificant if you don't expect to live a long, healthy life from that point forward. If you wait until your FRA, it takes about 12 years to collect the same amount in total benefits as if you had claimed at age 62.

Even if you are in decent health now, if your family history and your lifestyle suggest less than average longevity, claiming before your FRA, as early as 62, may be a prudent choice. By "lifestyle" I mean, for example, whether you exercise regularly, smoke or drink excessively or drive without a seatbelt. There are several life expectancy calculators available which can assist with predicting your life expectancy by evaluating your family history and lifestyle, including those available at this website: <https://socialsecurityreport.org/tools/life-expectancy-calculator/>. Just remember that no one can accurately forecast how long they will live but making an informed decision on when to claim should consider your estimated longevity, among other things.

If collecting your Social Security benefits early is needed to help pay for life's necessities, such as food, housing, and out-of-pocket medical costs, then claiming as early as age 62, or any other time before your FRA, could be exactly the right choice. In other words, the need for the money now is a driving force in deciding when to claim.

Which brings me to your point that claiming at age 62 was a "jump start" to your retirement, allowing you to begin enjoying your golden years much earlier than you might have otherwise been able to. There's a lot to be said for taking benefits early to fulfill your bucket list while you're still young enough to enjoy it. And, from your signature, it looks like you've been putting that extra Social Security money to good use for many years now. Good for you! Now, at age 78, you've reached your "breakeven point" where, if you had waited until your FRA to claim, your cumulative lifetime benefits would hereafter be more than they will be because you claimed at 62. That may not, however, offset the many years of happy retirement you've been able to enjoy because you took your benefits early.

In the end, deciding when to claim Social Security should be done after carefully evaluating your personal situation. Anyone who claims benefits before their full retirement age must beware of Social Security's "earnings test" which limits how much you can earn before your benefits are affected. But those who can afford to wait and who expect to live to a ripe old age would do well to consider delaying until their full retirement age, or even beyond, to claim their Social Security benefits. If their life expectancy is at least "average" they'll collect much more in cumulative lifetime benefits by doing so.

Dress Jeans, Disco & Dating by Frank Maraschiello

Frank Maraschiello

By Bill Snyder

Growing up on Buffalo's West Side in the 1970's has been on the mind of a local school teacher outside the classroom for several years. Frank Maraschiello has always had vivid memories of his childhood and a love for the City that he penned a personal memoir two short years ago entitled "Dress Jeans, Disco & Dating." Published in April of 2018, Maraschiello takes readers back to a time and place that helped shape his early life as a student in the Elmwood Village.

His main character, Nick Carnavale, is a wide-eyed, innocent young man growing up in the working-class Italian West Side. The year is 1976 and everything is "red, white and blue."

"I was very fortunate to grow up at a time when families from the neighborhood knew each other, when kids all went to the same school and had parties in their own backyard. Gerald Ford was the President and gas was only 59 cents a gallon. My parents helped prepare me for what was happening in the real world."

His parents, Nick and Elizabeth Carnavale, came from a long line of Carnavales' that fought in WWII and worked two jobs to support their families. His father owned a landscaping business and sung in local clubs at night. His Mother just wished to stay at home and raise the family with an Airedale Terrier named Humphrey.

Maraschiello, using Carnavale as his voice, takes us right up until his College years at fictional Peter's College and tells readers of coming of age with his first love, a girl he had met at a Cousins Graduation party from a North Buffalo School. If there really is love at first sight, Stephanie Pacifico had a beautiful smile and I couldn't take my eyes off of her. "My Cousin Ronnie told me then that "she's was out of your league." Maraschiello said.

"Dress Jeans, Disco & Dating" is 37 short chapters of Maraschiello's experience with the on-coming disco dance craze era when young Hollywood TV Actor John Travolta starred in the the film Saturday Night Fever.

While Maraschiello was growing up, the West Side was an eclectic place to live and work. Businesses such as The Elmwood Taco & Sub Shop, John's Corner Store, Casa Di Pizza, A & P, Liberty Shoes, Frozen Whip were just a few of the places that he and his family and friends would shop or hang out in. But according to the author, one of his favorite places was the Pantastik Store located at the corner of Elmwood and Bidwell Parkway. It was there where he was able purchase everything he would need to attend high school dances taking place at Cardinal Brennan, O' Malley High School, or He & She's Night Club out near the Big Blue Whale in Tonawanda.

Cardinal Brennan in North Buffalo offered Maraschiello a chance to meet kids from North Buffalo and Riverside. His love for sports growing up in the fields of LaSalle Park for little league football and baseball were just right for a School like Cardinal Brennan. Buffalo athletes like O.J. Simpson, Gil Perreault and Bob McAdoo were huge role models for Maraschiello and his friends in the Baynes/ Bird Avenue intersections that the author called home.

"There were the Marones, the Palladino's, Morosc, LaDucas, Pasquales, Barones, Genoveses, Boncores and several others that helped make my early child life better. Everyone knew each other."

"Dress Jeans" also tells us how Nick and the Carnavales made it through the Blizzard of 1977, shoveling out neighbors buried in snow. Nick getting a drivers license and eventually his first car. His 18th birthday and the pasta dinner with family.

When Hollywood came to the West Side in 1978 for Actor James Caans' movie Hide In Plain Sight, Maraschiello would try to catch a glimpse of the great actor turned director and get an autograph. "I was standing on a street corner one day, looking at him from a distance. You couldn't get too close, then all of a sudden he starts walking towards me. Apparently he wanted to see what the shot would look like from where I was standing. He (Caan) sees me and says, "hello son!" He signed a piece of paper I had on top of a parked car!"

Now, Maraschiello looks back at the time spent in the West Side Village and remembers the lives of his parents and the sacrifices they made to raise him to become just who he is today. His Cousin Ronnie is now gone, like a brother to him in those early years. His friend Stephanie will always be a friend but for those who have passed, they are never far away. They are always with him.

ADOPT A PET

Sponsored By The Buffalo Rocket

This Week's Featured Friend: JET

Jet is an approximately 3 year old mixed breed who came to the shelter as a stray and his owners never came to claim him. He is a really petite sized fellow in the 25-30 lb range (and is full grown). Jet almost looks like an overgrown Boston Terrier! Little Jet is a perky and fun loving fellow who loves his people and is very cuddly. He is not a huge fan of his kennel and is just so sad to be stuck at the shelter, so he cherishes all the time he can be outside with people and relishes any chance to play, run and frolic outside. Jet does pull a bit on the leash when he first gets out of his kennel, but calms down after the initial excitement fades. Pet ID: 44480040

Because of the COVID19 situation, the shelter is closed to the general public. If you would like to meet any of the adoptable dogs, please fill out an application online (if you are not already pre-approved), call the shelter, and leave a message with your name and phone number and the dog you're interested in.
